Which of the following is the MOST likely cause of the issue?

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION: 2

A retention policy allows an IBM Security QRadar SIEM V7.2.8 Administrator to define how long the system is required to keep certain types of data and what to do when data reaches a certain age. If a 3-month retention policy is defined for all events, then the system will not delete event data until it's on disk timestamp is 3 months in the past.

Which two choices are available in the 'delete data in this bucket'? (Choose two.)

- A. When performance is heavily affected
- B. Immediately after retention period has expired
- C. Upon reboot of the system
- D. When storage space is required
- E. When the index is full

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

Explanation:

From the list box, select a deletion policy. Options include:

* When storage space is required - Select this option if you want events or flows that match the Keep data placed in this bucket for parameter to remain in storage until the disk monitoring system detects that storage is required. If used disk space reaches 85% for records and 83% for payloads, data will be deleted. Deletion continues until the used disk space reaches 82% for records and 81% for payloads.

When storage is required, only events or flows that match the Keep data placed in this bucket for parameter are deleted.

* Immediately after the retention period has expired - Select this option if you want events to be deleted immediately on matching the Keep data placed in this bucket for parameter. The events or flows are deleted at the next scheduled disk maintenance process, regardless of free disk space or compression requirements.

Adding Intrusion Prevention

Gartner's definition of a next-generation firewall is one that combines firewall filtering and intrusion prevention systems (IPSs). Like firewalls, IPSs filter packets in real time. But instead of filtering based on user profiles and application policies, they scan for known malicious patterns in incoming code, called signatures. These signatures indicate the presence of malware, such as worms, Trojan horses, and spyware.

Malware can overwhelm server and network resources and cause denial of service (DoS) to internal employees, external Web users, or both. By filtering for known malicious signatures, IPSs add an extra layer of security to firewall capabilities; once the malware is detected by the IPS, the system will block it from the network.

Firewalls provide the first line of defense in any organization's network security infrastructure. They do so by matching corporate policies about users' network access rights to the connection information surrounding each access attempt. If the variables don't match, the firewall blocks the access connection. If the variables do match, the firewall allows the acceptable traffic to flow through the network.

In this way, the firewall forms the basic building block of an organization's network security architecture. It pays to use one with superior performance to maximize network uptime for business-critical operations. The reason is that the rapid addition of voice, video, and collaborative traffic to corporate networks is driving the need for firewall engines that operate at very high speeds and that also support application-level inspection. While standard Layer 2 and Layer 3 firewalls prevent unauthorized access to internal and external networks, firewalls enhanced with application-level inspection examine, identify, and verify application types at Layer 7 to make sure unwanted or misbehaving application traffic doesn't join the network. With these capabilities, the firewall can enforce endpoint user registration and authentication and provide administrative control over the use of multimedia applications.
